

IBM China's Blue Pathway Program is one of the most famous and valuable Internship programs in China. It is geared toward 2013 graduates to place them in real business and industry environment and prepare them for corporate and community leadership. As a major part of annual Campus Recruitment Program, Blue Pathway Internship Program will provide interns with job opportunities, mentoring, training and professional/technical development. Students will also receive competitive experience such as IBM's recognition after successful completion of our Blue Pathway Internship Program. For students who maintain an excellent academic record and a positive work performance with IBM, we will seek to convert them to full-time hires after their graduation.

Blue Pathway positions are open to overseas Chinese students who would like to come back to work in China after graduation. At IBM, we unite different cultures, languages, professions and perspectives in one globally integrated enterprise. This approach is the cornerstone of our business strategy and it's helping to fuel our rapid growth in markets all over the world. With international education background and exposure, you'll have an ideal opportunity to make early career advancements during this explosive growth period through IBM China's vast array of internship opportunities in the following areas:
